Dear Jason,

I still remember our first meeting. We told you about our oldest daughter and her academic and social background, along with our financial situation. Asked if you could think of any schools that might be a good fit, you immediately answered, "University of Redlands." We are so excited and proud that she will begin classes there this fall. With your guidance she received $23,600 in free money from Redlands for each year of attendance; that's $94,400 for the four years she will be there! Unbelievable considering that based on our FAFSA profile we qualify for no aid.

Although this financial aspect is the main reason we wanted to work with you, we all received an unexpected benefit in the form of exposure to many different schools. Unfortunately, college admission in California is very competitive; even the best and brightest don't get in to their top university choices. Like many students, our daughter wanted to attend the USC's and UCLA's. If left to her own devices, she would have only applied to those schools. Thanks to your direction, she researched many more schools and discovered great colleges that she had never heard of. We all feel that she is going to find the perfect fit at the University of Redlands; a school we never knew existed!

You have made this daunting process actually enjoyable for our family. We look forward to working with you when daughters 2 and 3 are ready. Thank you again.

Sincerely,

Jennifer and Herb Weigel
